A QUICK DIP AFTER A HOT DAY OF PADDLING is now an option on the local stretch of the Androscoggin River. Canoeists taking part in the "Androscoggin River. Source to the Sea Canoe Trek" passed through Bethel over the weekend, on their way downstream to the Atlantic Ocean. Their visit coincided with the announcement that the Maine Department of Environmental Protection is lifting the no swimming advisory on 15 miles of the Androscoggin, from the New Hampshire state line to the Sunday River. By Michael Daniels

DEP: local Androscoggin OK for swimming

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Canoeists and kayakers will have a new option on the local stretch of the Androscoggin River. The Maine Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) announced today that it is lifting a no swimming advisory on 15 miles of the Androscoggin, from the New Hampshire state line to the Sunday River. The advisory was lifted after a series of water quality tests showed that the river meets the state's standards for swimming. The DEP also announced that it is lifting the advisory on the Androscoggin from the New Hampshire state line to the Sunday River.

1996 Telstar graduates urged to be individuals

By ALISON ALOISIO

Memories of classmates at Telstar High School dominated the graduation ceremony for the Class of 1996 Friday, as 55 graduates received diplomas.

In welcoming family and friends, Rebecca Chandler and Jessica Coolidge described the class members as "each a piece, and together we make a puzzle" of various talents.

Third honors speaker Justin Hutchins remembered classmates -- not by name, but by personal qualities.

He described ones "who always brings funnies, ignoring cliques who truly dig music and leaves in with pictures to ponder in our minds who always puts gas in a borrowed car and shares her candy who shares his CDs with everyone because he is friends with everyone whose beautiful voice and soul make us step back in awe who can swallow an entire banana because he gives everything to all that he does who cherishes the Beatles first and has always been bold enough to do his own thing... these are only some of us," Hutchins said.

Graduation speaker Lydia Crover urged her peers to hold onto their individuality, and to not let their classmates who have done so. "Having an individual style and doing things your own way and not being the most important thing in life," she said.

Indicted Gould Academy faculty member resigns

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Gould Academy environmental science teacher John Burnell, 40, who was indicted Thursday on charges he stole $47,000 from the school's Field of Dreams project, has resigned.

Burnell joined the Gould faculty in 1995. He resigned this week for personal reasons, citing the heavy workload at the academy, according to Gould Associate Headmaster Don H. Dwyer.

"He has resigned to allow himself some time to spend on personal matters which he feels deserve the bulk of his attention," Dwyer said. "Boarding school life is extremely consuming and in the particular case of new teachers allows for little beyond it."

Burnell, who could not be reached for comment, served as treasurer of the Harrison Youth Boosters and managed the construction of the sprawling $1 million Field of Dreams sports complex on Route 117. The state alleges that during 1994 and 1995, Burnell embezzled $47,000 by writing checks to himself, to his bank and by using project money to pay a personal bill, according to detective Bill Holmes of the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department.

The disappearance of the funds has been under investigation since the fall. Last week a Cumberland County Grand Jury indicted Burnell for a Class B felony, aggregated theft, which is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

No other charges are expected to be filed in regard to the Boosters Club finances, Holmes said.

Burnell and other members of the club initially characterized the missing funds as an internal matter, saying the money was being repaid. Assistant District Attorney Debra Pope said Burnell has paid back $33,000, but, she said, he only began to pay the money back after questions were raised about its disappearance.

Veteran guide from Nepal learns new skills in Newry

• Urgen Sherpa has climbed on Mt. Everest, but rappelling down Maine rocks is another matter

By ALISON ALOISIO

Urgen Sherpa is a tough man. He has climbed on Mt. Everest. Perhaps even more impressive, he braves Maine black flies without bug dope.

Sherpa, a member of the Sherpa clan of Nepal, is visiting the Hunting Island Outward Bound School in Newry, swapping his experiences in the Himalayas for Outward Bound skills.

He and his brother, Dawa, own Sherpa High Ambitions Trekking Ltd. They lead and organize hiking and climbing trips, including ascents of Mt. Everest.

Urgen himself has not made it all the way to Everest's 29,000-foot peak, but he has climbed up to 21,000 feet on the mountain. Much of his time is spent organizing technical climbs, as well as lower-altitude hikes.

OB instructor Saranne Taylor met the brothers while climbing in the Annapurna Mountain Range.

When she was about to return to the United States, Taylor asked Urgen if there was anything she could do for him. "He said, 'Yes, get me a job in the United States.'"

Urgen said he had a hard time adjusting to the Maine black flies. "They are worse here," Urgen said. He said Nepal does have black flies and mosquitoes, but they don't go above 8,000 feet in altitude. "There are, apparently, some black flies here," Urgen said. He said Nepal does have black flies and mosquitoes, but they don't go above 8,000 feet in altitude. "There are, apparently, some luxuries at the top of the world.) Despite Maine's ferocious bugs, Urgen is not using bug dope to ward them off.

"I don't like chemicals," he said.

Sherpa life

Taylor said Urgen has much to offer the Outward Bound instructors and students he's spending time with.

"Our lifestyles are very different. We always rush around to get things done. The Nepali way is different. They're so adaptable," she said. "They're also very fit in mind and body. The porters can carry almost their own weight up and down hills."

Urgen grew up in an 8,000-foot-altitude Sherpa village, where he worked first for his family. At age 17, he left to find work in Katmandu, Nepal's capital.

There, in 1976, he got a job planting trees with the American Peace Corps. He learned English from the members. He then worked his way through several trekking companies before founding his own in 1987.

Urgen said people outside Nepal often interpret "Sherpa" as an occupation, when, in fact, it is the name of a clan, or tribe of people.

"They grew up at high altitudes, and they are strong. They do physical work, so it is easy to get a job (such as a porter)," he said. One Sherpa, for instance, climbed to the summit (of Mt. Everest) nine times without oxygen.

Climbing the world's highest peak is not a time-honored Sherpa tradition, however. Clan members did not seriously think about climbing it before Westerners showed interest in the 1920s.

Urgen agrees the Nepalese are more easygoing than westerners. "They do not rush, they do not worry too much. They don't have much, but they are happy," he said of his people.

But his own experience in working with Westerners has had its effect on him. "I changed my mind to do things a little faster," he said.

Most of his company's treks are hikes, rather than technical climbing. But, "if they want to go to Everest, that's O.K. -- I'll take them," he said.

It was Urgen who made the arrangements for a Mt. Everest climb for Greg Wilcox of North Conway, N.H. Wilcox and others successfully reached the summit in 1991.

What will he tell Everest clients who may be nervous about eight recent fatalities that occurred during a sudden storm on the mountain?

"They had unusual weather. They had bad luck," he said. He would also tell potential clients, "If you had bad luck, you could die at home. You could be struck by lightning."

"Some climbers are not qualified. They want to go, and be famous," he said.

While Everest climbers must first get a permit from Nepal's Ministry of Tourism and have their climbing experience checked, Urgen said he would not take anyone who still did not seem qualified.

"I would encourage them to go elsewhere (on an easier climb). It's my business to make money -- and make sure they get home safely," he said.

Board

"Most of them are awake all night, and when they go home, they, for the most part, are too tired to party. So the result is, less teenage parties Saturday night."

Bethel resident Jane Lowe agreed, in her own letter. She said changing to Sunday would allow more opportunity for pre-graduation parties on Friday and Saturday, with potentially tragic results.

But Wight disagreed. "Anyone who thinks they'll be too tired to party Saturday (following a Friday ceremony) doesn't remember what it's like to be 17," she said.

Others opponents of the change argued the date should not be changed for the sake of a few athletes. Lowe wrote, "To change the date and time of graduation due to athletic events sends a message that sports is more important than recognizing the academic achievements of the senior class."

Director John Brown said, "When you go out for sports you take your chances. I think it's a decision an individual has to make at the time -- not a decision of the board."

Tradition and the opportunity for long-distance travelers to travel home over Saturday and Sunday were also reasons given to keep the status quo.

Assistant principal Carroll Higgins said a survey of next year's seniors showed them divided over the dates. However, a large percentage simply didn't care, "as long as they get their diplomas," said Higgins.

The board eventually voted 573-314 to change to Sunday.

Jenkins' evaluation delayed

Trouble over Supt. Ron Jenkins' evaluation kept the board in session until after 11 p.m.

Jenkins' contract calls for him to be evaluated annually, in November. Personnel Committee chairman Debbie Gilbert said Jenkins has not had an official evaluation in three years -- since he has been with the district. Problems with the process have led the board and Jenkins to put it off.

In the latest evaluation effort, the committee last month sent out evaluation forms to the SAD44 administrative and central office staff. Some have been returned.

The staff members were promised confidentiality, with only the personnel committee members seeing the completed forms. Staff had the choice of signing them.

The superintendent, however, has a right to see all documents pertaining to his evaluation. Gilbert said Jenkins was aware of the letter's content.

Difficulties with the timeline for completing the evaluation have also again muddled the waters.

The board went into executive session Monday night to discuss a letter from SAD44's attorney regarding the process.

Directors ultimately voted to have the Personnel Committee go back to the drawing board on the evaluation process, and bring a plan to the full board by Sept. 1. How the already-completed forms will fit into the scenario remains to be seen.

In other business, Jenkins told the board he had learned the district may bill Medicaid for some expenses relating to the education of special ed students.

That could save the district between $25,000 and $40,000 dollars. Billable services could include speech therapy and some of the day programs that require an educational technician, Jenkins said.

The district will use Maine State Billing Services to handle the paperwork initially, at a charge of 13 percent of the money retrieved. SAD44 would likely eventually take over the process itself, Jenkins said.

River

bearing age not to eat any fish from the river. Other people are advised to eat no more than one fish per month from the river.

But the days of the dioxin warning may also be limited.

Dioxin is a by-product of the traditional chlorine-bleaching process used by paper mills, but a new technology being in use at the Crown Vantage paper mill in Berlin may drop the dioxin level in the river to the point where the advisory could be eliminated, Mower said.

The new process uses chlorine dioxide rather than chlorine. While not eliminating dioxin entirely, the process reduces it to undetectable levels.

It takes two or three years for a reduction in dioxin to show up in the fish samples, Mower said.

And it has now been two years since the Berlin Mill stopped using chlorine, according to Crown Vantage scientist Dr. Ray Danforth.

"We've tested the effluent from the mill and from the bleachery, and neither has detectable levels of dioxin," Danforth said.

Since the mill stopped using chlorine, he said, the concentration of dioxin in trout samples has dropped to less than 1 part-per-trillion.

Prior to the elimination of chlorine, he said, the tests had shown 3 to 5 PPT.

In 1990, tests of fish from various parts of the Androscoggin River showed an average dioxin contamination of nearly 21 PPT.

KIT CAME HOME—Werner Kohlmeyer of Bethel was reunited with his golden retriever, Kit, late last month after the four-year-old dog was lost for three months. Kohlmeyer, owner of the L'Auberge Inn, let Kit out the first week in March. He never came back, and Kohlmeyer put posters up all over town to try to locate him. "I thought someone had stolen him, and that he was living happily in Connecticut or Massachusetts," Kohlmeyer said. He had several calls from the posters, but they turned out to be other dogs, and about a month ago he gave up hope of seeing Kit again. He even got another dog in the meantime -- another golden named Tory, Kit's cousin. But on May 23, Bethel Inn employee Steve Polli saw a dog matching the poster photo dart through the inn parking lot. It disappeared, however, before he could check the collar. Polli's friend, Val Elmore, suggested they take some hot dogs to the parking lot to try to lure the dog back. It worked. About midnight, they called Kohlmeyer. A tearful reunion in the inn's Recreation Center followed. "He (Kit) was exhausted and looked like he had been traveling. I thought he had been some distance away and had worked his way back. I think he sensed I had gotten another dog and got jealous," said Kohlmeyer.

Main St. P.O. site still alive

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The United States Postal Service has given supporters of the post office site on Main Street until June 28 to come up with an acceptable proposal.

USPS real estate specialist Terry Brooks wrote to Town Manager Madeleine Henley last week, saying he was postponing a final decision as a result of a telephone conversation and letter from selectman Dutch Dresser.

Dresser made the case for razing the current building and keeping the post office in the center of the village.

In Brooks' letter to Henley, he restated the space requirements of a new site. The most difficult of those requirements to meet, Brooks said later, is square footage.

The USPS requires 4,000 SF, with the potential to add another 2,000 SF. The present building has approximately 2,000 SF, Brooks said.

If an acceptable Main Street proposal cannot be put together, the USPS has indicated a clear preference for placing the new post office in Bethel Station.

Dresser said later that the town would have to move quickly if it is to keep the post office on Main Street.

"I have entered the fray on this issue because it is clear to me that the only site within the borders favored by many citizens with real advantage to existing downtown businesses is the site of today's post office," he said. "What makes that location so valuable in its support of downtown businesses is its walking proximity to so many other businesses and services. A post office user can park the car once and do lots of other errands within short walking distance. No other available site has that advantage."

"If the existing site can't be made to serve, I favor the Bethel Station site, since it will have ample opportunity for vehicular traffic and won't upset a quiet residential neighborhood."

"Even suggesting the site of the current post office is likely presumptuous without proper communication with current owners, but the U.S. Postal Service decision was going forward quickly. To keep the wishes of the public alive on this matter, a viable alternative suggestion had to be offered for consideration. It will be important to have conversations with the appropriate parties if this option is to be fully explored within the allotted time."

It is hard to believe that June is here even though all signs tell us so.

The days are alive with sound, increasing day by day from cold March.

These sounds go with the daisies in the field and the roses of June. We can hear the hummings and buzzings and rustling through the long daylight hours. There is no true silence now. This alone, is the voice of summer.

Six months ago we had only a little over nine hours of sunlight. Now there are about fifteen with the year's longest day just ahead. So everything evens out.

Wild strawberries ripen, the rains have helped the soil, butterflies brighten the hillsides, brooks laugh their way to the sea, a dragonfly invites you to the pond's edge and that big black and gold insect, the bumblebee, is busy. This insect is moderate in many ways. It saves its energy by often nesting in homes of field mice near a clover field. It even sleeps when its tired or at night in an aster bloom or a zinnia. We can't say that about some other insects. It tolerates man if he lets it alone. It has no desire to be domesticated.

June is a vacation dreamed about, as well as so many things. Let's enjoy it!

Several from here enjoyed their class reunions from West Paris High School on Saturday. Ann Holt entertained her class at her home before the banquet in West Paris.

Also a probable food sale later on in the summer. Next meeting will be July 8, at 12:30 p.m. at Freda's. The meeting was adjourned and coffee and pie were enjoyed.

West Paris Alumni Banquet was well attended by 153 members and guests. The members of the 1956 class were Phyllis Young, Pauline Smith, Faye Holt and Glenn Emery. From the 1946 honored class were Dorothy (Perham) Farrar, Helen (Ross) Farrar, Audrey (Chase) Hadley, Frances (Ellingwood) Haney, Miriam (Pirainen) Inman, Lorraine (Newell) Turner, Florence (Andrews) Whynot, Sherman Cole, Erwin Heath and William Flavin (who was not able to stay for the banquet, but did come to the socializing before to visit with us).

The Banquet honored Dorothy D. Ross, who taught commercial subjects for 45 years, with most of the time here in West Paris. After the meeting, music was provided by Lenwood Andrews, Ivan Proctor, Glenn Emery and "Zeke" Trask.

Congratulations are in order for Darcy Robertson and Austin Hayes on being awarded the Albert Jackson Scholarship. We are so pleased!

Glad to hear that Aunt Millie is back at Songo Pond for the summer. I just heard that Ivan Proctor has been admitted to Stephens Memorial Hospital.

As Peggy knew she wouldn't be home Saturday, she made two pies on Friday, for Saturday night's dance.

Sister Laura came down from East Andover Saturday morning, and we joined her for a trip to Oxford Grange Hall to help work the Grange degrees. Laura had to stop at Paris Farmer's Union, as she had purchased one pail a few days earlier, and had been charged for two pails.

At Oxford Grange Hall, we were offered coffee and doughnuts while waiting for degree working time. We all filled offices, myself as master, Sister Peggy as assistant steward and Sister Laura as chaplain. Three other Franklin Grange members helped at working the degrees, Wilma Day as lady assistant steward, Lucy Robbins as Flora, and Dorothy Canwell as pianist. The first and second degrees were worked on by five candidates in the forenoon. The degree work went quite nicely, but we were all glad when it was finished.

We came back home and Laura left for East Andover, with my old electric lawn mower and more of our good rhubarb to make pies.

Howdy friends! This is Tuesday morning, June 4, and it's on the rather wet side here, from rain that started last evening. Some people say that we need some rain, but I could do without it at the present time.

by Marta Clements

The year is winding down with lots of projects coming in, and fun activities taking place.

Normally the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of patriotic songs is done in individual classrooms. However, our schools will be celebrating Flag Day by learning about the history and symbolism of our flag. On Friday, June 14, we will all gather outdoors around the flag pole and salute the flag together. This is one more activity that brings the whole school together to promote pride in ourselves, our school, our community, our state and our nation.

The sixth-graders are creating the 1996 Yearbook which will be published the week of June 17. They are working on volcano projects with their third-grade buddies, working on final book reports, and looking forward to their science field trip to Kettle Cove.

My fifth-graders have finished their unit on space and held a mini science fair. Grades 2-6 came to our room to view the projects and ask the students questions about what they had learned. Our final space project will be to launch the rocket made by Erik Poland and Ryan Dillingham. We will be presenting our musical show, Let's Hear it For America, Wednesday, June 12 at 2:15 p.m.

Our two fourth grades are working on individual projects on the regions of the U.S. These projects are due on June 17. They are studying the digestive system and nutrition in science class.

The third-grade Super Brains had the most readers for the RIF Read-a-thon. Congratulations! Each morning this class begins with a class meeting they call their Pow-Wow.

They start with a greeting. Then news, information, questions and classroom issues are discussed and resolved at the meeting. Mrs. Merrill says it really starts the day off well.

The second- and third-graders have prepared for their trip to the Norlands in their study of pioneer life. They are going on June 13. The children have been bringing in cans and bottles to help pay for the trip. Sarah Brulotte was one who did a lot of reading, and brought in the most money for RIF. She was treated to a pizza luncheon with Mrs. Cindy Johnson, the RIF teacher.

The first-graders are learning about imagination. They read a story called Josephine's Imagination, discussed the meaning, then created some fantastic watercolor paintings. This was followed by story writing. Mrs. Mullen says it looks like the first grade may produce some excellent authors! First-graders, like all children, love water. Therefore, they are really enthusiastic about their science unit experimenting with things that sink or float.

The kindergarten, with the help of parent volunteer, Mrs. Westleigh, is preparing for their study of the community and school helpers' week. They are also into their teddy bear project, bringing their favorite teddy bear to school all week, measuring and weighing them, then preparing a graph. Of course they will have their teddy bear picnic at the end.

MUSIC MINISTRY

The Bethel Alliance Church will host the singing group "Commission" on Friday, June 14, at 7 p.m. The student touring music ministry of Nyack College in Nyack, N.Y., will present a program of traditional and contemporary Christian music as well as personal testimonies.

The public is invited to attend. For further information regarding the concert, contact the church office at 207-824-2289.

CIVIL-WAR-ERA PREACHING

In connection with the Bicentennial's Heritage Weekend, a special worship service will be held this Sunday at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel. A chaplain will come to the church from the Civil War Encampment on the common and preach a sermon similar to those which church folks would have heard in the 1850's and 60's.

Charles McGillicuddy portrays the Rev. Henry Leonard, a chaplain with the Third Maine Infantry Regiment. He has carefully researched the Civil War period using soldiers' letters, a book of the Rev. Leonard's sermons and other materials.

In his work as a nurse at Togus, McGillicuddy has specialized in counseling veterans suffering from post traumatic stress disorder. Although PTSD is a recently named problem, McGillicuddy has been interested to find the effects of wartime stress in the Civil War materials he has studied.

The worship service begins at 10:30 a.m. Childcare is provided and all are invited to attend.

ARTS COUNCIL MEETING

On Sunday, June 23, the Mahoosuc Arts Council will hold its Annual Meeting at the home of Paula and Dillon Gillies in Locke Mills. The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with a brief business meeting followed by a social gathering and potluck supper.

All interested members of the community are invited to attend. This is an opportunity to meet with the board of directors and to share information and ideas. Directions to the Gillies home may be obtained by calling 875-2009.

The Mahoosuc Arts Programming Committee is in the process of scheduling the 1996-97 season, and would appreciate suggestions, either at the annual meeting or by calling the Mahoosuc Arts office at 824-3575.

GREENWOOD HISTORICAL

Seventeen members and one guest attended the meeting of the Greenwood Historical Society Wednesday, June 5, with President Joan Kimball presiding.

Members will meet at the building on June 18 at 6:30 p.m. to do some cleaning.

Mellen Kimball reported that a test had been done on water from the well that was dug last year, and a good report was received.

The building will be open to visitors through July and August. Ellsworth and Joyce Hathaway will welcome guests on July 6 from 1 to 4 p.m.

The society was sorry to hear of the death of member Frank Packard. A memorial service was held at the Locke Mills Union Church on Saturday, June 1, and burial was at Mt. Abram Cemetery in Locke Mills.

wonder what might have been than to have tried something and decided it was not for you.

"Everyone has a role in society. Dictate what yours is -- do not let it be spelled out for you," he said.

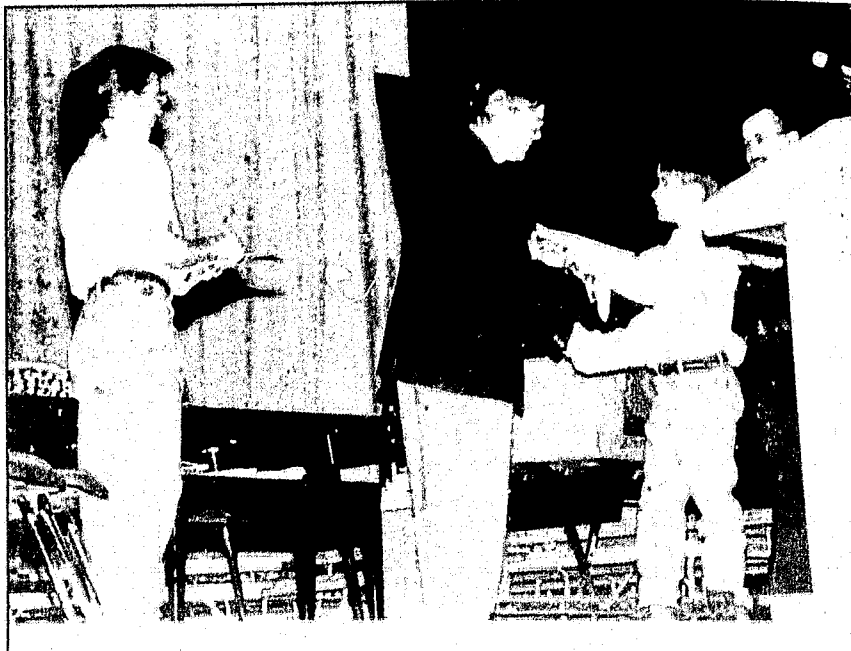

In "Reflections" Sadie Gallant and Katie Groves also remembered classmates and thanked teachers for their encouragement and help through the years.

School board vice chairman Ray Harrington advised the graduates to set goals, develop good standards of character and life, and stay up to date and informed on their options.

In saying farewell, class members Benjamin Fogg and Daniel Wigley likened the class members to a "rack of pool balls on the table of our lives ... now is the time to break."

It has been a tradition for each graduate, on receiving a diploma, to hand principal Ted Davis an item symbolic of the class. This year, pretend cherry bombs were the choice.

Telstar was the object of bomb threats during both the freshman and senior years of the Class of 1996.

DARE GRADUATES—Every member of the sixth grade class successfully graduated from the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program at Telstar Middle School last week. The course provides information about drugs and their abuse in the community. It also teaches decision-making skills, self-esteem and how to say no to pressure from peers. Here, student Mike Gordon receives a DARE T-shirt from middle school principal Dick Blackman. At left is volunteer Jeannine Buck, and in the background at right, Bethel police Sgt. Darren Tripp.

FROM THE

White Mountain National Forest

Join Patti Dugan-Henriksen, information assistant for the White Mountain National Forest on Wednesday, June 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Androscoggin Ranger Station in Gorham, N.H. or on Friday, June 28 at 8 p.m. at the Dolly Copp Campground Visitor Center for a slide show celebrating the unusual alpine plants found on and around Mt. Washington. This program, free and open to the public, begins this year's series co-sponsored by the Androscoggin Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest and the White Mountain Interpretive Association.

"Visitors can explore the natural and cultural history of the White Mountains and the world through a variety of programs during July and August," commented Dugan-Henriksen. "Families can join a Forest Service naturalist for a guided nature walk to discover the fields, woodlands and water around the new Androscoggin Ranger Station each Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. You can learn about the Abenaki during the Native American Cultural Celebration from July 21 through 27 or share your memories and make new ones during our 75th Anniversary Celebration from Aug. 10 through 17 at Dolly Copp Campground."

In addition to these special events, evening programs will be held on Fridays at Dolly Copp Campground and Saturdays at both Dolly Copp and Hastings Campground. For more information or a complete listing of programs, please contact the Androscoggin Ranger Station, 300 Glen Road, Gorham, 603-466-2713, TTY 603-466-2856.

Middle Intervale Quilt Show

A quilt show, sponsored by the Middle Intervale Meeting House Society, will be held June 29 at the meeting house on the Middle Intervale Road in Bethel, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This 10th-annual event will highlight the interior of this historic building, the oldest surviving religious structure in Bethel, dating from 1816.

All types of quilts, both old and new, are now being accepted for the show. Anyone with a quilt that he or she wishes to be considered for the show is urged to call June Abbott 836-2301, or Shireen Vincent 836-2918, for an application. The deadline for accepting applications is June 21.

A raffle of a "Galaxy Star" quilt is also being held on the day of the show, and you need not be present to win. Tickets are available from various society members and from Cross Country Quilters.

All proceeds will be used to continue the ongoing preservation of the meeting house.

From the Bethel Bicentennial Committee

By NATALIE TIMBERLAKE

Song, story, dance and special effects will recall moments of 200 years of Bethel history. The Bicentennial Pageant is set for Friday, Aug. 9, in Bingham Auditorium. Casting is now going on. There are 40 speaking parts and about as many walk-on roles. As much as possible, actors and actresses will "double-up" on some of the parts.

Some of the town's key figures and some who just helped to keep them successful will come to life during the evening. A father and young daughter (six to ten years old) have the longest parts of the evening. While these do not have to be related, the child should be a Bethel "native."

Many non-actors are needed to do production work: costuming, set building, lighting, audio, stage management, props and general help. There is a place in the pageant for anyone who wants to work and have a wonderful time in the process of rediscovering the past and the present in an unusual and entertaining way.

At a first Try-Out session June 3, several people signed up to be in the show. Many more are needed. To sign up, or for more information, call Natalie Timberlake 824-2234 or Arlene Brown 824-2149.

A chorus and solo musical selections are under the direction of Linda Hathaway Stowell. She wants boys, girls, men and women of all ages to answer her call for singing voices. For more information about music, call Stowell at 836-2221.

LOVING MEMORIES

Your gentle face and patient smile With sadness we recall You had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and stilled the heart, That loved us well and true, Ah, bitter was the trial to part From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one Nor will you ever be, As long as life and memory last We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore As time goes by we miss you more, Your loving smile, your gentle face, No one can fill your vacant place.

Happy Father's Day Dad, we miss you so much!
